

Dear [REDACTED]:

Thank you again for the opportunity to interview for the technical writer position at TechSmith. I enjoyed discussing the current issues regarding web content and management with you. I now have a better understanding of our current web issues and how the technical communications team can help assist in solving them.

As mentioned during the interview, my experience working at TechSmith as a technical writing intern has provided me with extensive knowledge of TechSmith's current documentation standards and the requirements of this position. I am confident in my ability to continue to learn from the technical communications team and to contribute to TechSmith's documentation.

Through my education and projects, I have experience in conducting research, writing to solve a range of organizational and user problems, and designing information for use in electronic environments. Continuing my employment at TechSmith would give me the opportunity to participate in engaging work and offer my skills and project devotion to the company.

Given the opportunity, I would be ecstatic to continue to work with and learn from the technical communications team. Once again, thank you for the opportunity to interview with TechSmith. The interview served to reinforce my strong interest in the technical writing position. I can be reached at [REDACTED] or by e-mail at [REDACTED] if you have any further questions. I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Sincerely,

Rachel Clark
